Historical Newspaper Collections – Current Trials

• The Financial Times Historical Archive
  1888 – 2016

This historical archive is a comprehensive, accurate, and unbiased research tool for everyone studying the economic and business history and current affairs of the last approximately 120 years.

• The Telegraph Historical Archive
  1855 – 2016

One of the few newspapers to have noticeably and deliberately shifted its political standpoint, moving from its early left-leaning liberalism to a more right-leaning conservatism in the late 1870s, and in the 1850s and 1860s it expanded coverage into the arts, culture, and the sciences.

• First World War: The Daily Mail played a pivotal role in the politics of the period, directly contributing to the change of British Government in 1916.

• “Popular”Politics Typically attracted a conservative readership, providing insight into the political issues that preoccupy the grass roots of the Conservative Party in Britain, including immigration, health. Historically, the paper also illustrates how some parts of the British population were inclined toward fascism in the 1930s.

• Women and Gender: The paper had a women’s column from its earliest issues and hired the world’s first female war correspondent to cover the South African/Boer War. The Daily Mail also distinguished itself from other newspapers by introducing the first women’s magazine in a newspaper in 1968.

• Crime: Crime stories sell popular newspapers, and as such, the Daily Mail has a large number of sensational articles that would not have been reported in the broadsheets.

• Home and Lifestyles: The Daily Mail founded the annual Ideal Home Exhibition in 1908 and continued to sponsor the event until 2009. At this annual event, designers aim to shape the way the British public lives, from home decorating to furniture to fashion.
The Daily Mail Historical Archive (1896 – 2004)

It is the oldest daily newspaper in continuous publication. With more than 200 years content, The Times is one of the most highly regarded resources for 18th, 19th and 20th news coverage, with every page of every issue from 1785 to 2013.
